Can you use the image above to write your own short story?

-Consider the relationship between the two characters in the image above.

- Who belongs here and who is intruding? Why is that man hiding? Has the other character spotted him?

Write an explanation text for the life cycle of a tree.

- How many stages are there?
- Can you include diagrams and subtitles?

Why not try ...

- When you are outdoors this week see how many different trees you can find. Maple, Oak, Beech etc. Are the leaves same or different for each tree? What is the same, what is different about each tree?
- Collect leaves from your garden and make leaf rubbings using crayons. Have you managed to create a nice design?

Write a character description of the beast.

- Describe its appearance. Be sure to use adjectives.
- How does this creature move? Make sure you use impressive adverbs.
- What noises does he make?
- Use figurative language to enhance your character description.
For example: His eyes were as blue as the ocean.

Continue the story until you reach a suitable ending.

- Does the boy return home to tell his story? Does anyone believe him?
- Are the boy and the beast reunited? Do they become friends?

Why not try ...

- Designing your very own beast. Your beast could have two sides to them, just like the one from the video. This beast loves marshmallows, what is it that your beast loves?
- Create a giant catapult to help the boy throw giant marshmallows for the beast. Be sure to label your diagram, that way we know how to use it.
